

Cornell Alcohol and Other Drug Related Survey Data

Data related to the use of alcohol and other drugs by Cornell University students comes from a variety of surveys conducted during recent years. These surveys were conducted by faculty, Gannett Health Services, the Office of Institutional Research and Planning, and external researchers. Although data collection techniques differ somewhat between these surveys, they each adhere to accepted standards of scientific methodology.

The data presented below provide an overview of main findings from the Core Alcohol and Drug Survey, for the years 2000, 2003, and 2005. The Fall 2000 survey had 719 respondents with a response rate of 45%. The Fall 2003 survey had 1,595 respondents and a response rate of 40%. The Fall 2005 survey had 1,969 respondents and a response rate of 41%.

Comparison to National Sample

Gannett: Cornell University Health Services administered the Core Alcohol and Drug Survey to random samples of undergraduate students in the fall of 2000 (n = 719, response rate = 45%), fall of 2003 (n = 1595, response rate = 40%), and fall of 2005 (n = 1969, response rate = 41%). The following summary highlights the findings from these two administrations and compares them with a national reference data set of undergraduates compiled in 2004.
